

At Fort Governor's, history intertwines with the heartbeat of the land, crafting an experience that transcends time. Founded by Barbara Kind in 2014, our estate emerged from a vision to revive a sanctuary for both guests and wildlife alike. What began as a restoration project blossomed into a vibrant reserve, showcasing the rich tapestry of South Africa's natural wonders. Our lodges, born from meticulous renovation, stand as a testament to our commitment to providing a haven where every visitor can forge their own unforgettable story. Since our official launch in 2016, we've welcomed wanderers from every corner of the globe, inviting them to discover the magic that pulses through the heart of the Eastern Cape.

Discover the Thrill of African Hunting
at Fort Governor's Estate

Kudu:

In the dappled shade of the forest, the Kudu moves with a grace that belies its size. With spiraling horns that reach towards the sky, the Kudu embodies the majesty of Africa's ancient landscapes. Pursuing a Kudu through the wilderness is a journey of reverence and awe, as hunters follow in the footsteps of generations past, seeking to connect with the essence of the land and its noble inhabitants.

Blesbuck:

In the golden light of dawn, the Blesbuck roams the savannah with an air of regal grace. Their distinctive white face and chestnut coat create a striking contrast against the African plains. For hunters, pursuing the Blesbuck is not just a quest for a trophy, but an encounter with a symbol of resilience and beauty, embodying the spirit of the untamed wilderness.

Warthog:

Warthogs are the rugged denizens of the bushveld. Yet beneath their formidable exterior lies a spirit of adaptability and cunning survival. Tracking a Warthog through the thicket requires patience and skill.

Impala:

Bounding across the landscape with effortless agility. To stalk the Impala is to embrace the challenge of matching wits with one of Africa's most iconic antelope, weaving through the thorn-scrub and acacia with determination and respect.

Baboon:

Traversing the rocky outcrops, the Baboon is a creature of both curiosity and cunning. Tracking a Baboon requires not just skill with a rifle, but an understanding of the intricate web of life that binds all creatures in the African wilderness.
